

Who

The National University of Political and Administrative Studies (SNSPA) and the University of Meaning / Universidad del Sentido, public university of the Vatican City State developed by Scholas Occurrentes, have jointly launched the international master's program "Global Leadership and Sustainable Development".

When

4-14.09.2026: ONLINE REGISTRATION
17.09.2026: ONLINE INTERVIEW
18.09.2026: RESULTS ON WEBSITE
21-23.09.2026: FINAL REGISTRATION

Why

The main objective of the master is to train moral, responsible leaders, capable of contributing to the construction of a fair and inclusive international community, oriented towards peace, social justice and sustainable development.

The mission assumed is to train and develop professional skills in the analysis of global political, economic and social developments, covering a training deficit in a sector that has constantly evolved in recent years, becoming an emerging space increasingly necessary for actors in the international system.

The program aims to train specialists for national and international structures, human resources capable of understanding the local specificity and the behavior of regional actors in relation to international structures and events with global impact. The general objective of the master's program is for each student to rediscover the meaning and purpose of public policies.

How

According to the student's interests

The curriculum includes both a series of mandatory courses, which are intended to lay the foundations or consolidate fundamental notions and concepts, and a series of optional courses, from which students can choose those that best respond to their area of interest, between the Global South and the Global North or between different regions (Central and Eastern Europe, Latin America, Africa, Asia).

The curriculum allows you to find out exactly how many courses you will have per semester, what they are and how you can take them, in order to accumulate the 120 transferable credits.
